Although legally designated inspections are obligatory for life rafts, they inevitably deteriorate with age. The degree of deterioration depends on the stowage location and the servicing conditions of the vessel. According to a report of a ship chandlery investigalive organ, life rafts can deteriorate rapidly 8 years after production.

Life rafts older than 8 years can still be used provided they pass the designated inspection.

However, in consideration of the special nature of the article whose primary function is safety, we suggest you to replace your life rafts with new ones every 8 to 12 years.

For maintenance, inspection and repair of Fujikura's life rafts, contact the nearest Fujikura Service Station.
